Dedicated to Dean Martha Allen

Yellow-jeep rides . . . an imaginative teacher of history . . . honorary member of the annual staff . . . active supporter and advisor of many campus organizations . . . delightful sense of humor . . . owner of a back-yard menagerie . . . an unofficial Sneed girl . . . Dean of Women.

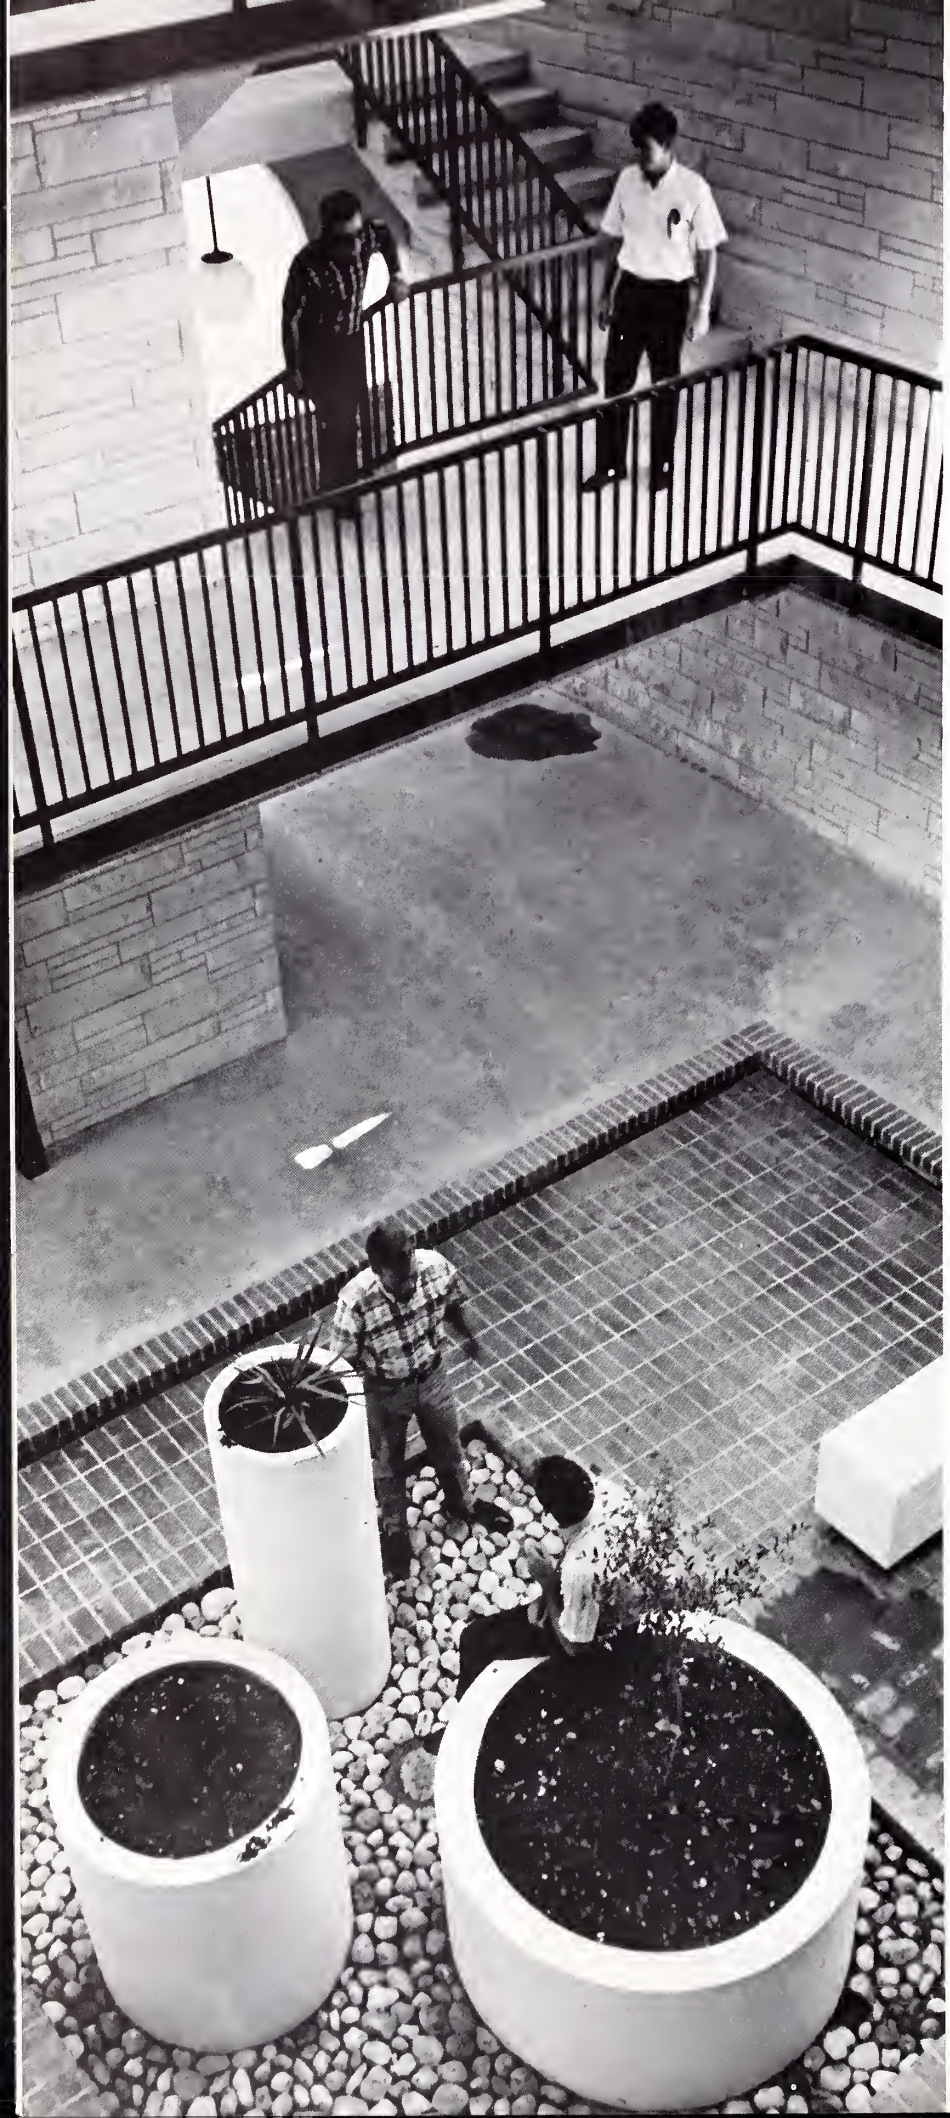
While serving seven years as Dean and assistant professor of history, Martha Allen has contributed much time and energy to her duties. She has also encouraged many of the progressive changes which have occurred in women's government during recent years.

In appreciation of her contributions to the Southwestern University community, her warmth, and her sincerity, the 1967 Sou'wester is dedicated to Dean Allen.

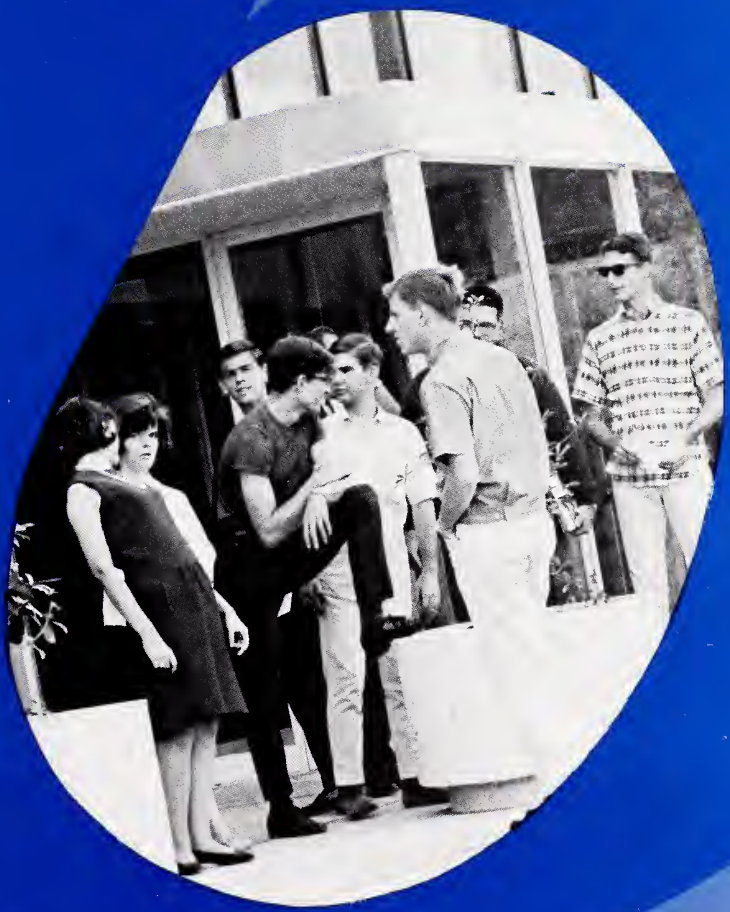
Promises of a new look at Southwestern came true as students returned to campus for the fall semester. Four impressive additions to the campus map added new conveniences to student living. A circular University Commons, the Herman Brown and Moody-Shearn apartment-style men's residence halls, and the Cody Memorial Library addition gave the campus a new face that many students had been anticipating since the previous spring.

The academic year at Southwestern also promised to be one of change. The fall term was divided into two semesters—the first ended before Christmas holidays and the second was a three week intensive study course in January, allowing a student to devote his time completely to one course. Two additional academic programs were initiated this year—the academic internship and the University Scholars program. The internship allowed students to relate their academic background to institutions in society, offering valuable experience for life after graduation. The Scholars program, started this year, offered talented freshmen and sophomores experimental courses with plans for special research projects.

Southwestern entered the year with a new face drawn by the lines of progress laying the ground work for coming years of change.



Student Life



The Beginning of a Changing Year

The fall semester saw mellow autumn days colored by the yellow-brown of trees and intense blue of the sky . . . an expanding university hoping to challenge the academic interest of its students . . . four new buildings—two men's dormitories (er, residence halls), a modern, circular Commons complete with board cards, more food, and longer serving hours, and an uncompleted library which promised a fire place, many carrels, carpeted floors, and a wider book selection. Meanwhile students and professors prepared papers and lectures while coping with the library situated in Mood Hall. The campus was involved in the changing pace of a growing university with more activities than ever squeezed into the shortened academic calendar.

Catalogue dreams became temporary realities as freshmen arrived on campus eager to experience life as a college student. A modified Orientation broadened the scope of the Summer Reading Program to include art, music, and the contemporary problems of the Negro. Registration was initiated during the summer for new students and completed at school in the fall. To accommodate the new fifteen week semester, hour-long classes began at 7:50 a.m. The campus took a first step into what the administration promised would be a distinctive year dedicated to total involvement in academic pursuit.

Manifestations of Rush Week—happiness, security, sisterhood, brotherhood, and maybe a little disappointment. After the hectic schedule of the week, a higher per cent of the freshmen than ever before chose to join the Greek system. When the confusion and uncertainty were over, new promisees were received at various points on campus. Most groups had a picnic afterwards, and the week was climaxed at the Panhellenic Dance.

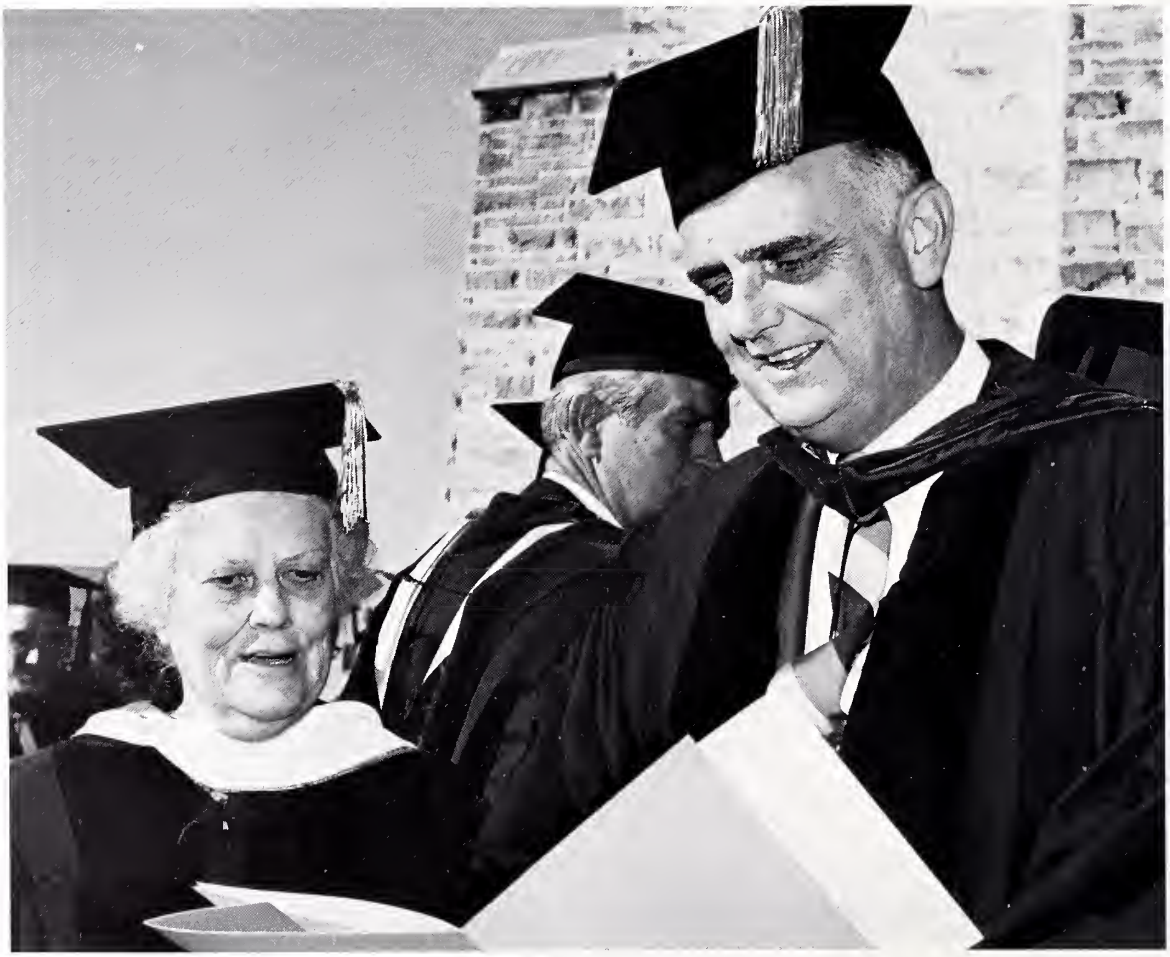
While many university men resided in the new Herman Brown and Moody-Shearn halls, which were complete with court yards, balconies, and sky lights, plans were confirmed that Kurth and Laura Kuykendall halls would be air conditioned and the latter remodeled for returning female students. Mood Hall, no longer a men's dormitory, became office and class space for English professors and their students.

Fraternity men continued to serenade the girls of Kurth and LK, and, in turn, fraternity row was roused one night by serenading Sneed girls.

To the continuing SU traditions of SUB sitting and chapel attendance were added library book checkers and pink board cards. But, the library was quiet and comfortable and offered students and faculty private study areas, while the Commons, also air conditioned, boasted of its improved and expanded food service and its handsomely decorated banquet area upstairs.

Kappa Alpha Derby Day offered enthusiastic sorority pledges several surprises. Besides the crab crawl, wheel barrow race, and baloon pop, pledges slung mud from a tub to find their sorority's disk, gulped pie mouthfuls at a time, and chased and tied a greased pig. The winning pledge class was Delta Zeta.

The first performance sponsored by the Southwestern Artist Series was the Preservation Hall Jazz Band. Led by blind trumpeter De De Pierce, the musicians with their captive audience were completely involved in the music. Other attractions of the Artist Series, the Dallas Symphony Orchestra and the Turneau Opera Players in La Traviata, offered excellent cultural opportunities.



One of the most distinguished events of the year was the dedication of Southwestern's four new buildings: the circular University Commons, two men's residence halls, Herman Brown and Moody-Shearn, and the massive addition to the Cody Memorial Library.

Among the dignitaries present were Governor John Connally who delivered the convocation address, stressing the value of private education; John D. Wheeler, former chairman of the Board of Trustees, who presented the Commons to the school; George R. Brown, president of the Brown Foundation, who presented Herman Brown Hall and the Cody Memorial Library addition; and Mrs. Mary Moody Northern, representing the Moody Foundation, who presented Moody-Shearn Hall to the University.

The rare book room of the library addition was officially opened with Mrs. Charles N. Prothro's exhibit, The Bible, Keystone of Culture. This room houses the Brown collection, the Clark Texana, an extensive Wesleyana and original writings of the early history of the Methodist Church in Texas.

The highlight of the day for many was Connally's address, which he concluded by stating, "Whatever progress we are able to make, the private college must contribute to as an integral part of the total higher education system."

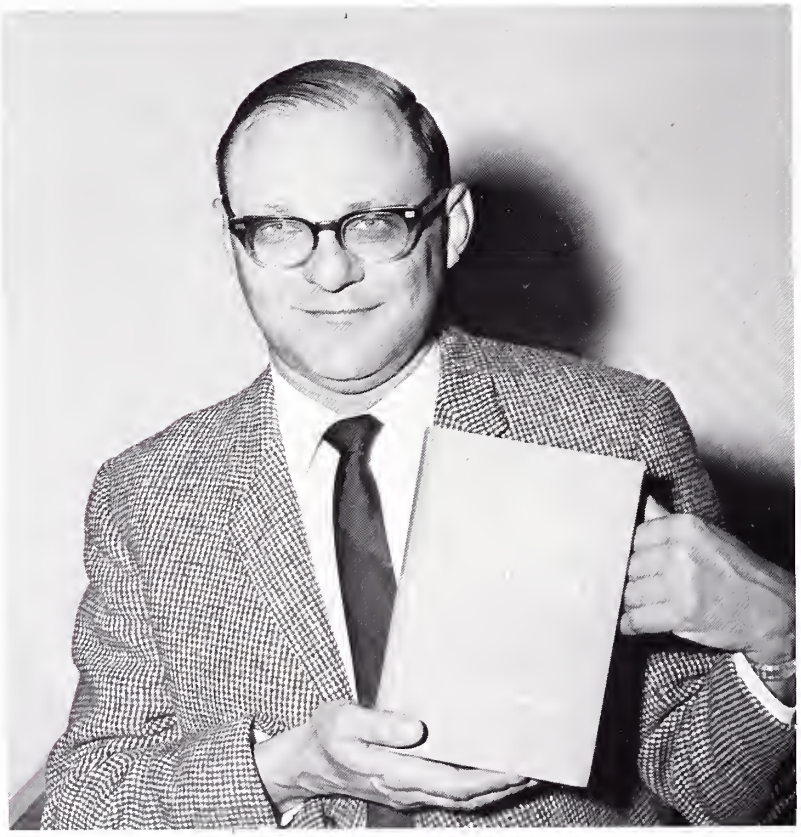
Homecoming, 1966

The first Fall Homecoming in several years proved to be very successful. Dean-John Richards of the School of Fine Arts was honored as Mr. Homecoming on the twentieth anniversary of his coming to Southwestern as the director of the A'Cappella Choir. Members of previous choirs had a reunion of their own, and a special program by this year's choir was presented for their entertainment.

Various organizations, particularly the Greeks, were busy several weeks in advance building floats for the special parade and booths for the carnival that evening. Janet Bauman was crowned Homecoming Queen to preside over the festivities. Other nominees were Hanna Hannan, Gretchen Morgan, Judy Chadwick, Kay Purdy, Judy Lorton, Grace Evans, and June Pearson.



Southwestern played host to a number of people who offered something special to the campus. Mrs. Sally Gee Pettus, a 1926 graduate of SU exhibited a collection of about thirty of her paintings, which express a mood characteristic of Texas. Dr. Lloyd J. Averill, the Willson lecturer, gave a series of five lectures to the University and also met informally with students. Speaking on the "Aspects of Man", Averill discussed man's refusal to be human and his use of freedom. The flying saucer expert, James Moseley, spoke to an interested but skeptical audience on his beliefs and knowledge of outer space. The Slover lecturer, Dr. Niels C. Nielsen, Jr., commented on the subject of "Advent in the Secular City". Rod MacLeish, TV commentator and foreign correspondent, lectured on the political implications of recent national and local elections. At the question and answer period following, MacLeish answered queries concerning events occurring all over the world, and well demonstrated his amazing knowledge of international moods and events. Dr. Douglas Hooker co-authored the book, The Psychology of the Emerging Self, which is to be used as a text for courses in mental health and psychological adjustment.

The Mask and Wig Players presented four memorable productions for the 1966-1967 season. "Tartuffe" by Moliere was presented in the round, and its satirical humor was well brought out by John Murrell, Jay Rust, and Kathi Donahue. The controversial "Marat/Sade" presented a challenge to the cast and the audience while it played to a near full house of invited guests and season ticket holders. In leading roles were John Mansfield, Cheryl Horne, and Joe McCorkle. "Hippolytus" offered the campus a rare opportunity to see Greek tragedy. Costumes, scenery, and makeup added to the effectiveness of the production. The delightful "Teahouse of the August Moon" was the final play of the year. Leading roles in the play were held by John Hamilton as Sakini, John Mansfield as the amusing Colonel Purdy, and Bryan Heck as Captain Fisby.

Southwestern's basketball team captured second place in a hotly contested race for the Big State Conference championship. The Pirates finished their season with a home game against St. Mary's, who came out on top of the league. If the Bucs had won the bout with St. Mary's, they would have tied for first place and the top spot would have been decided in a sudden death play-off. No longer the door-mat of their conference, though, the team boasted a 13-8 record for the season, and had second place firmly in their grasp before the last decisive game.

Placing three men on the All-Conference teams, the Pirates were well deserving of the support they received—they even filled the gym on a Saturday night! The steps forward can be attributed to increased team and school spirit, hard work, expanding recruitment services, and the coaching of Bill Merritt.

As Christmas approached, exams did also, but the holiday spirit missed no one. Open house was held in all the dorms, giving some a good reason for seasonal decorations. The Union sponsored the traditional tree trim, and the band entertained with holiday music.

Christmas traditions were kept alive even though dead week and final exams preceded the holiday. The Messiah was excellently presented by the A'Cappella Choir, and the Commons served its special Christmas dinner before the beautiful candle-lighting and carol service. As students left the campus for the Christmas holidays, their exams were over and they could look forward to two weeks of leisure · before returning to school for the new January term.

The three week semester in January was a unique academic experience for many. Science majors could spend the entire day in the lab; fine arts students were also able to devote their time completely to their major field. A skiing trip to Vail, Colorado offered PT credit, and advanced chemistry students traveled south to visit industrial chemical plants. Intense studying was required in many courses; some students spent more time with their books than ever before.

Southwestern had her snow fall early in the spring semester, calling students out to the golf course slope to slide with Commons' trays. Also occupied were the park, the boodies, and the chairs in front of the Union fire place.

EXPRESSION-1, Southwestern's first campus-sponsored contest with prizes for creativity in literature, journalism, and photography, was sponsored by the local chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, Southwestern Magazine, The Megaphone, and The Sou'wester.

All students enrolled at Southwestern were eligible to enter any work that was entirely their own. Winners were selected and awarded prizes in the areas of literature with the divisions of short story, poetry, and essay, journalism with divisions of news stories, features, and editorials, and photography whose divisions were photographic essay, black and white prints, and color slides. Judges included prominent professionals and professors in the three fields. Among the ten judges were Leon Hale, Houston Post columnist; Dr. Thomas B. Whitbread, University of Texas professor of English; Miss Eloise Roach, member of the Austin Poetry Society, and chairman of the board of Poetry House; Russell Lee, well-known photographer and University of Texas lecturer in art; Dr. Norris Davis, chairman of the University of Texas Department of Journalism; and Delbert McGuire, director of the Department of Journalism, Texas A&M University.

The prizes for the winners of EXPRESSION-1 included subscriptions to Playboy, The Atlantic, Harper's, Saturday Review, New Republic (donated by the publishers); E. B. White's book, The Points of My Compass, (donated by The New Yorker); subscriptions to The National Observer (donated by the Texas Association of Sigma Delta Chi); and $5.00 gift certificates from Hemphill's Book Stores and Gus's Drug Store.

On this page is printed the first place winner in the color slide division. Submitted by Van Phillips, the entry is entitled "Barbara". Winners in the other photography divisions are printed on following pages. Literary and journalism winners may be found in the May issue of Southwestern Magazine.

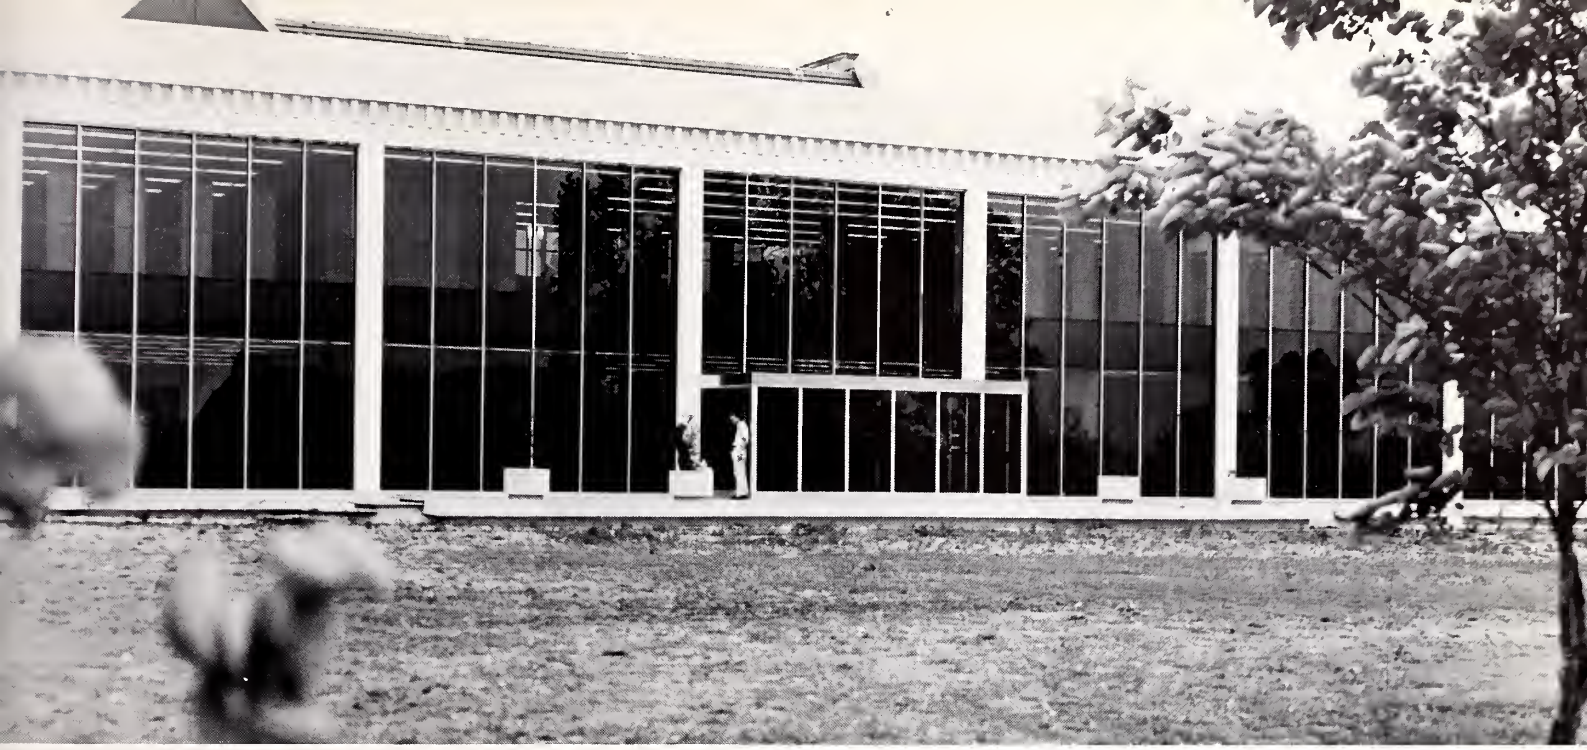
Our photography judge, Russell Lee, is a member of the University of Texas Art Department and is currently teaching experimental courses in photography as an aid to painting, sculpture, and other art forms.

Lee graduated from Lehigh University as a chemical engineer. After his marriage to an artist, he became interested in painting, quit his industrial work, and studied painting at the California School of Fine Arts, Art Students League of NYC, and with John Sloan.

Acquiring a Contax camera in 1936, Lee began using photography to help with his drawing. He soon joined the photography staff of the Resettlement Administration (Farm Security Administration) and in 1942 photographed for the Office of War Information. During the war he was commissioned to do special aerial photography.

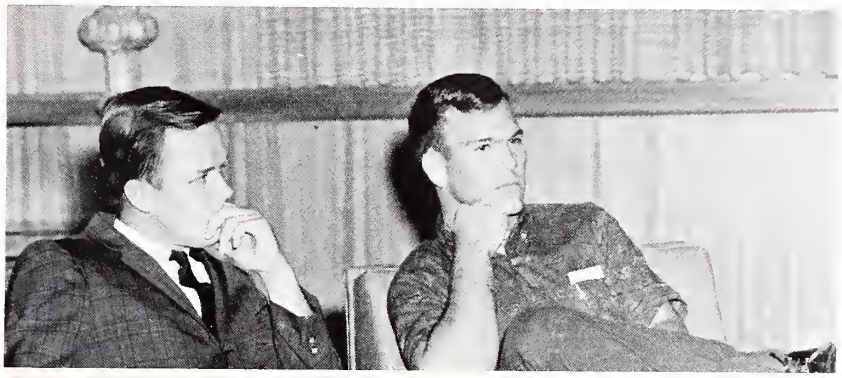
His Retrospective Exhibition opened at the University of Texas Art Museum in 1965, was later sent to the Witte Museum in San Antonio, and was exhibited at Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D.C.



Spring . . . afternoons and nights at the boodies . . . a library with Sunday hours . . . rides in a yellow jeep painted with apricot daisies . . . picnics at the park . . . afternoons under a tree with a boy.

Union sponsored events offered students a variety of entertainment and activities. The Model United Nations involved over one hundred students in current international affairs. Appearing at the meetings were representatives ranging from the Vatican City to Red China to demonstrators for peace in Viet Nam.

A campus talent show, informal seasonal dances, and a delightful return performance by Lu Mitchell were a few of the highlights of Union planned events.



The honors assembly, held early in May, is a time of recognition for people who have contributed to the University or who have been selected for a special honor. Mr. Charles DeShong was announced as having been voted favorite professor in an all-school election. The William H. Atwell Student Citizen Award was presented to Bill Germer. Diane Steinert received the Delta Delta Delta local scholarship award from Lucy Burton. Dean John Richards presented Susan Mims with the Mary Lynn Webb Starnes Music Award. The dedication of the SOU'WESTER was made to Dean of Women Martha Allen.

Graduation Day brought one of Southwestern's largest commencement services in recent years with 151 seniors receiving degrees. Bishop W. Angie Smith of Oklahoma, returning to his alma mater, delivered the convocation address. Because of the limited number of seats available in the chapel, a closed circuit television system was hooked up in the Union for guests.

With thoughts of the future, Seniors looked ahead and would soon experience the same successes, failures, challenges, responsibilities, and changes that occurred at Southwestern.

Everybody has a place, a purpose—a way to find himself—especially at Southwestern. Some discover it leading; others, following, participating.

Many organizations accepted the challenge of defining their purpose in campus life. As they did, changes occurred. The Senate acted: the library opened; the SCA died; the MEGAPHONE looked beyond the campus to controversy.

Varsity Basketball Team

The Pirate basketball team had an outstanding season, boasting second place in the Big State Conference. The title game was played with St. Mary's, which the team lost by a close margin. Coached by Bill Merritt, the Pirates won all their home games except for two. Their victories were over Bergstrom AFB, Texas Lutheran, Texas A & I, Texas Wesleyan, East Texas Baptist, Houston Baptist, University of St. Thomas, and St. Edward's. Their losses were set-backs by Howard Payne, Trinity, St. Edward's, St. Mary's, Texas A & I, East Texas Baptist, and Ft. Sam Houston.

According to statistics sheets rating NAIA colleges, the Pirates were ranked 16th in team defense. This was the only Big State representative among the defense units. The Pirates became genuine contenders for first place this year after several winless seasons.

At the Conference Meet, the big race was the mile relay, in which Luke Lucas, Harry Barthlow, Barry McBurnett, and Kearby Swofford captured first place with the winning time of 3:31.6. Other winning entries from the Pirate team were Swofford's 52.5 in the 440 yard dash, and Davis Blanton's first place tie in the high jump with 5'11"

Other Pirates who placed in the meet were Jay Stovall, second in the shot and discus, and fifth in the javelin; Blanton, second in the 330 yard intermediate hurdles; Clarence Wuthrich, second in the mile run; David Detweiler, tied for second in the pole vault; Bill Fling, third in the two mile run and fifth in the mile; Rick Horsey, fourth in the pole vault; McBurnett, fifth in the 220 yard dash; and Luke Lucas, sixth in the 220. Coach Myron Dees

Participating in the Big State Conference, Southwestern's baseball team finished their season with a win-loss record of 5-10. Coached by Myron Dees, the Pirates placed a man on the All-Conference team and began the season with six returning starters and several promising college transfers.

Considered a dark horse candidate for the conference title at the start of the season, the Pirates met with bad luck the latter part of the spring and completed the season with a 2-7 conference record.

As the year closes and faces turn toward the future, years of progress are seen to lie ahead. Southwestern has taken the initiative in bringing outstanding academic programs into practice. It is our hope that she continues to do so. We've tried to record the changing pace of life at Southwestern, events that you will want to remember.

Sincere thanks are due too many people to name. In particular, appreciation is expressed to Dr. McCook for his interest and understanding; Mr. True for his ready smile and morale-boosting encouragement; Mr. Hobbs and Mr. Wink, our advisors, for their time and helpful suggestions which often saved us from disaster; Mr. T. Jones, the Taylor representative, for his help and patience; and all the staff members who devoted their time toward a successful yearbook.
